Slaley and Hexhamshire
Welcome
slaleywelcomes@gmail.com

A missing key...

With nearly £7,500 raised in just 5 weeks; pledges and donations in the pipeline and fundraising events being planned, The Slaley and Hexhamshire Welcome project, the Community Sponsor Group offering a new life for refugees, is receiving some very positive attention from groups and individuals.

But the group is missing a vital cog in the machinery of the application: - accommodation. The search is on. It perhaps needs further explanation. Accommodation is not expected to be freely given....

Landlords/owners can expect to receive rent and legal protection. "The scheme needs to offer a two-year commitment, backed by a shorthold tenancy. Under the government scheme we are working with, the landlord is eligible to receive Northumberland County Council's housing benefit rates" explains Project Lead Mark Jennings.

'Slaley and Hexhamshire Welcome will have raised funds to help with decorating, furnishing, any minor repairs and if needed could even top up the housing benefit' he says. Thus explained it may be of interest to owners of holiday lets in the area who may consider the project as guaranteeing 2 years' worth of income rather than being reliant on a shorter holiday period.

There are expected and necessary requirements. "We are looking for self-contained accommodation. It needs to have its own front door, living and sleeping space and a bathroom and kitchen. The size of the place will determine which refugee or refugee family we are matched to." Who is allocated is not the decision of the Welcome group. The UNHCR (United Nations High Commission for Refugees) will allocate a family, a couple or an individual to match the property size and location. Accommodation size is therefore less important than the actual offer of it.

It goes without saying that the 'welcome' will be greater and more supportive if the location is central within the two communities, but 'nearby' is also suitable. "Given the fantastic number of volunteers who have come forward we feel we can support a family in a rural environment - so many people have offered help" says Mark.

The project has already received tremendous support with the offer of time and expertise as well as money. A few final pushes will allow the GO button to be pushed.

Mark sums it up "I'm really confident that if we can find the right place, we can help a family that is in really dire circumstances just now. So many people have come forward wanting to offer support - helping with transport, health needs, schooling. We have seen the best of our community."

FoSS News

With Spring in the air, we have just had a successful Fundraise & Recycle collection from school. We asked parents to donate pre-loved clothing to recycle and we raised a grand total of £61.20 for the school.

With Easter around the corner, FOSS are planning an exciting Easter bonnet competition and Easter egg trail for the children. We are also hoping to do the Smarties challenge where we give each child a tube of Smarties to enjoy at home and in return fill it with spare change and we will see which class collects the most money and there will be a class prize! Our Slaley First School cookbooks are still available to buy, the books cost £10. You can buy these at the Slaley shop or on our JustGiving site: <https://www.justgiving.com/fundraising/slaleyschoolcookbook21>

We are very pleased that FoSS fundraising has paid for some brilliant treats for the children including a Planetarium visit, the Image theatre, decodable phonics books and a polytunnel! FoSS are very grateful for your continued support in making FoSS events successful!

The Rose and Crown

We held two special events in March marking St. Patrick's Day and Mother's Day (and a thoroughly enjoyable time was had by all). As spring moves into summer we'll be holding many more. The events page on our website is regularly updated, so why not keep checking in with us at <http://www.roseandcrownsalaley.co.uk/events.php> to see if anything tickles your fancy. We're currently working on a new website for the pub to enhance the user experience. During the month we'll be bringing back one of the North East's up and coming photographers, Claire Batey of Unscripted Photography (<https://www.unscriptedphotography.co.uk/>), to take some promotional shots of all things 'Rose and Crown'. We'll be publishing the date and time on the website and we'd love you to come along and be in them - so do please keep your eyes peeled for further information about this exciting opportunity.

If you would like to view work that Claire has already done for us, do feel free to pop in and peruse our gallery in the bar. A celebratory Easter drink might be a nice accompaniment.

Recycling News from the Community Environmental Group

Are you up to speed with soft plastic?

About half of what has gone into your general waste bin can now be successfully reprocessed. Unfortunately, this is still not accepted by the weekly kerbside collections but major supermarkets are committed to taking soft plastics for recycling at their bigger stores.

What are soft plastics?

- All plastic bags, except biodegradable or compostable bags
- Bread bags
- Bubble wrap
- Delivery bags
- Frozen food bags
- Biscuit & chocolate wrappings
- Multi-pack wrapping
- Plastic marked as low-density polyethylene (LDPE) - resin ID code 4 e.g. biomass pellet sacks
- Breakfast cereal liners
- Crisp packets
- Dry cleaning bags
- Magazine and newspaper wrappers
- Salad, pasta & rice bags
- Toilet roll wrapping

All this material can be collected in plastic bags and returned to some supermarkets.

Where is the best collection spot?

Tesco Extra in Hexham is by far the most comprehensive collection spot with large capacity containers by the entrance.

The collection bin at Waitrose offers to recycle carrier bags but has a narrow aperture which does not welcome larger donations.

M&S have said they are collecting but the bins have yet to appear. Aldi also has none.

Recycling HQ at the Village Community Shop

The latest addition is the collection point for CORKS. So now pop your corks from the bottle to the shed.

Parish Council Notes

The Parish Council met on 14th March with a huge agenda, so this is a small taste of what was discussed. For more detail, please visit slaley.org.uk.

For many months, even years, the PC has been trying to get information about the progress towards a 20mph speed limit in the village and the improvements to the Glen Crossroads. There remains no update. The PC clerk will try a new approach, requesting information from Cllr Riddle. If anyone has had a near miss at the Glen Crossroads, please log that with the Parish Clerk (673388).

The PC wishes to co-ordinate a response to the Platinum Jubilee. There is a dedicated page on the parish website and an Open Meeting is to be held 11am Saturday 9th April in Slaley Commemoration Hall so that community groups can share ideas and plan together. If you wish to add to this page, please contact a councillor.

Another dedicated page on the parish website will provide information about the Neighbourhood Plan. Stage 1 has been passed by the Council and the Parish is embarking on Stage 2 which is a public consultation. Everyone is encouraged to attend open meetings on Sunday April 3rd 2.00 – 4.00pm and Thursday April 7th. 5.00 – 7.00pm. Both meetings in the Commemoration Hall.

For someone who has used the village hall for over 60 years and seen many changes I was thrilled last week to see it as it is now. The pictures, curtains, storage facilities and toilets were so good that I am sure are a pleasure to use. We should appreciate all the hard work that has been done and the foresight of the Huntings for giving our village such a lovely amenity and we look forward to its completion.

April gardening column- Karen Melvin

Seed sowing time again. I sow my early seeds of lettuce, rocket, spring onions, leeks, swiss chard, and spinach onto kitchen paper in old cream cheese tubs, which can then be stacked up somewhere warm in the kitchen. These robust tiny seedlings can be pricked into individual pots and go straight out into the unheated greenhouse. There was frost outside for my first batch but a sunny day heats the greenhouse. The cardiocrinum lily pods propped up under the tall bit of the greenhouse are drying out under the glass and shedding some of their seeds. Seeds sown over the past two years have not shown any signs of germination, and since all of my five offsets flowered at once last year, I might not have any dramatic tall lilies for this year's open gardens in Slaley. We are just getting the poster together and I am looking at Albert Weir's garden from 2016, with his collection of antique gardening tools and miscellaneous items artfully arranged in charming locations around the garden. Tin watering cans are displayed under a sagging table by a silver weeping pear, a beautiful small tree, which can be clipped and pruned to fit its space, but looks best when it has a generous space to dangle its long shoots. Along with many secluded seating areas in the garden is a wooden hut with slate tiles, folding door and day bed with welcoming cushions - a place to doze and dream.

Trygill Burn Cottage garden open for Slaley Parish Wander June 12th

Another area is enclosed by a stone wall, a wooden fence and a clipped box hedge, entered through a low white painted gate. The gateway is a place to pause and take in the different atmosphere of this more formal space with clipped box balls, a stone urn and a sculptural metal bird bath, all set off by tall white alliums and herbaceous geraniums. The whole garden is a mix of the formal and loose wild planting, punctuated by surprising arrangements and collections reminding us of the careful craftsmanship of old hand made objects. I'm looking forward to seeing it all again.

Down south seeing the grandchildren, I visited one of my favourite gardens, Evenley Wood. Even though it is early in the season there were some magnolias and perfect camellias in flower. There were expansive woodland carpets of the tiny daffodil, narcissus cyclamens and clumps of pale hellebores. The specimen plants are exciting and the children love the garden because they can scramble through streams, over bridges, into little rustic huts and climb on heaps of fallen trees; in other words, a magical place.

My Time at the Hexham Courant by Brian Tilley

Brian Tilley joined the Hexham Courant in 1973 as a reporter. (Five years after he left the advertising department in September 1968 to get married and move to Didsbury in Manchester).

Today, Brian Tilley is best known as 'Hextol', a character made famous by him when he was the Courant's deputy editor. Two books 'The Hextol Collection' published in 2007 and 'The Hextol Collection 2' published three years later in 2010 sold all over the world from Macclesfield to America and even Australia. Enjoying his retirement with Mrs Hextol, at Hextol Towers in Bellingham, Brian is still entertaining readers today with his weekly column. The funniest of 2022 was the issue of January 6th when his story of filling the pepper pot for Boxing Day guests caused a paroxysm of sneezing. It was the final paragraph to this story which made me laugh the most, but for copywrite reasons I cannot retell here - it will however be part of the April display. As will the story of being at a garden centre when the fire alarm went off (November 2018). In December 2020 Brian amused us with stories of serving behind the bar, in the late 1970s, at Dantino's night-spot while out on strike as a journalist from the Hexham Courant. However, for anyone who wears hearing aids and glasses the addition of face masks during the COVID 19 pandemic made his article of July 2020 the funniest of all. Brian has many stories to tell about his years as a reporter for the weekly newspaper. What was printable in the 70s, 80s and 90s wouldn't be allowed today so join Brian on Monday 25th for a trip down memory lane.

There will be a display to look at after the talk containing many of the Hextol articles, several local history editorials written by Brian and some Hexham Courant background information.

Helen's thought for the month.

Two years have passed since the first lockdown. It seems ages ago. The experience of the pandemic has taught us many things and has shown us, especially, just how vital community is to us all. In rural, isolated communities like ours, we had sufficient resources to cope with some measure of stoical determination, but a House of Lords Report published last month called for greater resilience in our communities as a whole and a stronger emphasis on well-being.

Both the pandemic and the war in Ukraine are also teaching us important lessons about ourselves, in that they prompt us to reflect on what we really want and what truly matters. I hope that as, God willing, we continue to rebuild our lives along with the shattered cities of Ukraine, we will hold onto that desire to reach out to one another and to build communities in which we reach out to one another, deeply value one another and make time for one another. If we do so our world may seem – and really be a better, brighter place. We have to hold onto hope. And that's what Easter's all about too.

Slaley weather report

The first three months of the year have been essentially dry, though we have had some extremely wet days. If the next week continues to be dry, we will have had another dry month, in spite of the unsettled and windy days, particularly in the middle of March. They didn't result in much precipitation. The total so far is only 22.8mm and 17 of those fell in one day on March 4th. Fifteen days have been completely dry.

Last year, March was even drier, only 18mm, though that was after much more average figures for January and February. The reason of course, has been a settled spell of high pressure.

Please give your support to all the enterprises that make this village a thriving community. Visit their websites, - a great deal of effort is being made to make them more informative and easily accessible.

By the time you read this congratulations should be due to Mark Jennings and Hugh McKendrick who should have completed their trip to Poland with a load of medical supplies for the Ukrainians.
